Purpose

This Nuclear Medicine procedure is performed in order to study the chest and abdomen to search for evidence of an infection.

Preparation

If you are currently breastfeeding, please inform the technologist before beginning your procedure.

Procedure

The technologist will draw a portion of your blood and mix it with a weak radioactive liquid. This takes about 4 hours to mix. The liquid will be injected into a vein in your arm. This liquid contains a very weak radioactive substance that will distribute itself throughout your body. After the injection, you will return to your room. You will be brought back to Nuclear Medicine in six hours for the scanning procedure. You will lie on a scanning table under a specialized scanner. The scanner does not emit radiation; it detects the radioactive substance in your body. By use of a computer, images are obtained and recorded. Each scan takes approximately 30 minutes to one hour.

Results

The radiologist will review your scan and send a written report to your physician. You will have to contact your physician for the results. Your physician will discuss the results with you as appropriate. The technologist will be unable to give you any information or interpretation about the results of your exam.

If you have questions concerning your upcoming procedure, please call the Diagnostic Imaging Department at 606-783-6761.
